Subject objectives	The primary objective of the seminar is to prepare students to independently write a master's thesis of high substantive quality. The topics covered include issues related to the methodology of writing a scientific paper, in particular the characteristics of scientific style, the rules for compiling a bibliography and footnotes, as well as a discussion of the rules for working with sources and the rules for analyzing views expressed in the literature and legal regulations, which are necessary for drawing independent conclusions to be presented in the master's thesis.

Learning outcomes	Course outcome	Subject outcome	Method of verification
	[ZARZMU2_K01] The student is prepared to gain and enhance the knowledge required to solve both cognitive and practical problems, particularly in the areas of management and quality sciences. Additionally, the student is capable of critically evaluating the knowledge and content received and will seek guidance from experts if they encounter difficulties in resolving a problem independently.	The student is ready to assess and critically approach complex situations and phenomena related to financial management in organizations, accounting, financial institution management, and financial institution strategies while preparing his master's thesis.	[SK1] oral statement/conversation/discussion [SK5] implementation of a problem task
	[ZARZMU2_U13] The student can formulate and verify hypotheses for simple research problems, acquire structured knowledge in management and quality sciences, learn about economics and finance, and appropriately select research methods.	The student is able to prepare and present a short study of a specific problem related to data analysis and processing.	[SU1] oral statement/conversation/discussion [SU3] text preparation/written work
	[ZARZMU2_U07] Students can create detailed written papers, including reviews, analyses, or research, along with presentations and oral discussions on management topics.	The student is able to independently and as part of a team prepare analyses, diagnoses, and reports (including a master's thesis) on financial management in organizations, accounting, financial institution management, and financial institution strategies, and to present them in a communicative manner using information and communication tools.	[SU1] oral statement/conversation/discussion [SU4] test/exam - oral or written
	[ZARZMU2_U02] The student can identify complex issues related to the organization's operations, the processes within it, and its relationships with a changing environment, proposing appropriate and innovative solutions.	Student can correctly interpret complex technological, social, political, legal, economic, and environmental processes and phenomena, as well as their impact on financial decisions in organizations, the functioning of organizations, and the economy as a whole, using the appropriate selection of sources for the purposes of research in a master's thesis.	[SU1] oral statement/conversation/discussion [SU3] text preparation/written work
	[ZARZMU2_W05] The student possesses a thorough understanding of advanced methods and techniques for acquiring, developing, and utilizing data in complex decision-making and management processes.	Student has in-depth knowledge and understanding of research methodology and terminology in the field of management and quality science, economics, and finance, necessary to write a master's thesis, particularly in the area of management, economics, and finance.	[SW1] oral statement/conversation/discussion [SW5] implementation of a problem task
	[ZARZMU2_U03] Students can obtain and verify data from selected sources, present and analyze economic processes and phenomena.	The student is able to critically evaluate sources used in self-study and own work.	[SU1] oral statement/conversation/discussion [SU3] text preparation/written work
Subject contents	1. Using literature forms of scientific studies, stages of familiarization with literature, rules for taking notes, bibliographic description. 2. Using catalogs and the Internet. 3. Formal aspects of work quotations, references and footnotes, bibliography, list of tables, list of figures, appendices. 4. Collecting empirical data, methods of analysis and presentation of results. Tables and charts. 5. Principles of constructing a scientific paper; a) selecting a research problem and formulating research questions hypotheses/research questions; b) construction and structure of the paper. Construction of the conclusion and introduction. Selecting and formulating the topic of the paper; structure of one's own research topic. 6. Ongoing verification of the substantive content of the written master's thesis and its improvement based on the supervisor's comments.
