Subject objectives	The lecture aims to sensitize students to the issues of thoroughly analyzing and understanding the historical processes that occurred in the past of the Polish Republic, the role of sites of memory and non-memory in shaping the cultural memory of post-war Polish society, and the highlights and shadows of contemporary historical policy. The lecture builds on high school-level knowledge of Polish history, but its goal is the critical analysis of historical memory - pointing out alternatives, analyzing dominant narratives, and the "invisible" groups in the standard presentation of school history.
