Subject objectives	The primary objective of the bachelor's seminar is to prepare the student to independently write and defend their diploma thesis (bachelor's thesis). It encompasses the following specific objectives : methodological preparation , understood as learning the principles of conducting research, using literature, citing sources, and formulating hypotheses and research theses; substantive preparation , understood as deepening knowledge in a selected area of tax law; analytical preparation , understood as developing the ability to critically analyse legal acts, case law, and subject literature; editorial preparation , understood as developing skills in structuring the thesis, maintaining academic style, and editing the text; as well as self-presentational preparation for the public defence of the thesis, answering questions, and academic discussion.

Learning outcomes	Course outcome	Subject outcome	Method of verification
	[PiDPL3_UO04] is able to plan and organize individual and team work, as well as cooperate with others in teamwork, in particular those appropriate for the application of public finance law and accounting (including interdisciplinary work, in particular legal and economic)	The student plans and organises the process of writing the bachelor's thesis in accordance with the seminar schedule, meets deadlines for the preparation of successive stages of the work (outline, chapters, bibliography), and actively participates in seminar discussions, providing constructive feedback on the work of other participants.	[SU3] text preparation/written work
	[PiDPL3_WK06] Knows and understands basic concepts and principles in the field of protection of industrial property and copyright	The student applies the principles of intellectual property protection and copyright law in the process of writing the bachelor's thesis — correctly cites sources, prepares footnotes and a bibliography, and is aware of the legal consequences of plagiarism and unauthorised use of others' academic work.	[SW3] text preparation/written work
	[PiDPL3_KK01] understands the complexity of problems occurring in the field of public finance law, finance and accounting and related disciplines and therefore is ready to critically assess the knowledge possessed in this area and the content received. understands the importance of knowledge in solving cognitive and practical problems and - in case of difficulties in solving the problem independently - seeking the opinions of experts dealing with public finance law, finance, accounting and related disciplines (especially scientists, experienced tax advisors, accountants, lawyers dealing with disciplines other than tax law and balance sheet law), and if necessary, also expert specialists in disciplines other than legal and economic sciences	The student critically evaluates academic literature, case law, and doctrinal writings in the field of tax law and finance in the context of the bachelor's thesis being written; recognises the limits of their own knowledge and, where justified, consults expert opinions (tax advisors, lawyers, economists) in order to properly develop the subject matter of the thesis.	[SK3] text preparation/written work
	[PiDPL3_UW01] is able to use the acquired theoretical knowledge in the field of public finance law and accounting and related scientific disciplines in order to formulate and solve complex and atypical problems (e.g. validation and interpretative problems related to the application of public finance law, tax analysis problems or balance sheet problems), including performing tasks in conditions not fully predictable by: appropriate selection of sources (including, in particular, legal acts, doctrinal literature and case law) and information from them, assessment, critical analysis and synthesis, selection and application of appropriate methods and tools (including advanced information and communication technologies, e.g. using learned methods of legal interpretation using electronic databases of case law and literature to solve basic problems related to the application of public finance law)	The student independently identifies and analyses complex problems in the field of public levy law that form the subject of the bachelor's thesis, selecting appropriate sources (normative acts, case law, doctrinal writings), applying methods of legal interpretation, and using electronic legal databases (LEX, ISAP) in order to formulate and substantiate the theses and conclusions of the work.
